"Mt. McKinley Expedition"

Mt McKinley is at 20,300 feet the highest point on the North American Continent. Also called “Denali” by Native Americans, the peak towers over the surrounding countryside and is a mecca for mountaineers throughout the world. Denali has been summited by many routes, ridges, and alpine faces since the first ascent of the North Peak in 1910 by the “Sourdoughs”. Our speaker is Roger Scholl, a long time AMC member, who will make a slide presentation of his climb and share with us the trials and tribulations of a modern expedition to the West Buttress of Denali.
